

Carya cordiformis

Bitternut Hickory

The fastest-growing of the hickories, this important wildlife tree is easy to identify from its sulfur-yellow buds. Beautiful golden-yellow fall color. Deep taproot makes transplanting difficult; best moved balled and burlapped when plant is small in early spring.

Suggested companions: red oak (Quercus rubra), sugar maple (Acer saccharum), tulip tree (Liriodendron tulipifera), spice bush (Lindera benzoin), maidenhair fern (Adiantum pedatum), wild leek (Allium tricoccum), blue phlox (Phlox divaricata).
